49-person grid is coming to Chrome and Edge, as breakout rooms arrive

Microsoft's 49-person Large Gallery and its AI-powered mode for putting remote people in the same virtual room are coming to web users on Google Chrome and Microsoft Edge browsers. Read more

Reduce background noise in Microsoft Teams

Whether it be multiple meetings occurring in a small space, children playing loudly nearby, or construction noise outside of your home office, unwanted background noise can be really distracting in Teams meetings. Users will have the ability to remove unwelcome background noise during their calls and meetings with a new AI-based noise suppression option. Read more

New ways to celebrate holiday festivities with Microsoft Teams

To make virtual office holiday parties and meetings more festive, Microsoft announced new experiences in Microsoft Teams including new holiday-themed Together mode scenes and custom backgrounds. They also announced the availability of breakout rooms, which make it easy to mix and mingle during a virtual holiday party. Read more

Announcing Project and Roadmap apps for Microsoft Teams

Connecting directly to Project from within Teams has been one of the major requests from Project users, and these apps will make it easy to manage, track, and collaborate on all aspects of a team's project in one place. This brings content and conversation side-by-side in one integrated experience. Read more

Home office tech that every remote worker wants

It's clear working from home and remote teaching is going to be around for a while, so it's time to help friends and loved ones get settled into their home offices. Read more
